SERIOUSLY
INSPIRING
EXTENSIONS

JOINED UP THINKING

In their quest for more space, the owners of this property bought the house next door and created a rear extension to unite the two homes. Using the proportions and materials of the existing Victorian house and garden as a guide, the architects have created something unexpectedly modern.

THE DETAILS: William Tozer Architecture & Design clad part of the structure in tanalised (preservative-treated) pine decking; the rest was covered in concrete render with tile adhesive added (it colours the render white so it doesn't need painting). All materials are available from Moores Building Supplies. The cost was approx £150,000. William Tozer Architecture & Design (020 7734 6055; www.wtad.co.uk).
